

Brian Hunt Appointed New CEO of CPAB

Nick Le Pan, Chair of CPAB, announced today, January 29th, that the Board is appointing Brian Hunt as the new CEO of CPAB. Brian was involved in creating CPAB and has been a Director since CPAB's inception. Brian brings a combination of experience as a provincial audit regulator in Ontario as head of the Ontario Institute of Chartered Accountants, experience and knowledge of CPAB's goals, commitment to CPAB's mission and demonstrated capability as a CEO to move an organization forward. Brian has a mandate to move CPAB to the next stage of effectiveness as an audit regulator, promoting improvements in the quality of audits of public companies in Canada. Brian will start as CEO of CPAB in early March.

The Board also extended its thanks to Ken Vallillee who has acted as CEO since the death of Keith Boocock. Ken stepped in to help move CPAB forward and has pioneered a number of changes at CPAB that move us in the right direction to continue fulfilling our mandate.
